By EVERETT HOLBROOK $

* T was early in the day, and the leweler Roversl was almost bar of patrons. Dignified gentleme gray or bidd, were standing behind t glass cases, waiting with waxen pla chilty for the opening of the day's loss ness, and there was neither life not color in the scene save by the door where a golden haired young woman lalutly gowned was talking with Par Roversi, nephew of the proprietor.

Between them was a small, plain, expensive lewel case, open, and the lady was looking down into it, where lay a string of pearls, not large ones por especially notable to the ordinar, observer, but possessing recondite mer its which commended them dearly to the councisseur "I love them," sahl Mrs. Hasbronck I could look at them all day. Area' hey beautiful?" And she pushed the hox toward Roversl, who looked at the pearls for a few seconds and then closed the lid man them. Mrs. 1138-bronck turned a thry key in the lock. Royersl escorted her to the carriage vhich waited before the door, and when she was seated he put down the little green casket beside her. He bud brought it from the store, holding it be-fore him in both hands as if it had een tragile, and when he had set it in he carriage he attered some words of aution in a half jesting tone. It mattered little what he said. He fascinated her always when he spoke, for his lips were delicate and wonderfully mobile, and his eyes brightened and changed with the current of his thought. Surely he was a remarkably handsome young man, and the indy was aware of his charm to the point of positive pain. Yet she could never un-derstand why it should not be an un-mixed pleasure; surely it was one that no human being had a right to deny her. She was a widow whose married life had scarcely a semblance of reality In her memory. It was only a dream of a man's sudden and fatal illness. and, looking back upon it, she seemed to behold berself in bridal dress and mourning erape on the same day.

Three years had dimmed the picture. She was a girl in heart and la looks-in ull things, indeed, except the independence of her station and the control of a great fortune. Roversl was her equal ially, and, though he had not a penny of his own, she had enough for two.
If he had extravagant tastes, so that he must go to his indulgent uncle twice a year with a handful of delds, at least he was a gentlemanly spendthrift, and his follies had never brought him into condemnation under the easy code of modern society. It is not probable that Mrs. Husbronek analyzed the young man's character to any serious advan-tage. Her fears and hopes, her joy and pain, proceeded not from the workings of her mind, but was from the agitation of her heart.

Absorbed in meditations which were upon the whole agreeable, Mrs. Has-broack rode homeward with her pearls. The carriage stopped heside the curb, and the lady glauned out of the open window, expecting to see the familiar doorsteps and red masonry before the portal of her house. Instead she saw the face of a groom la her employ who was standing in an attitude of apology with cap in Irand. "Iteg panton, ma'am," said he.

"HEO PARDON, MA'AM," SAID RE. cloth, if you'll be so good as to remem er, and was this the pattern that you He took n bit of cloth from the ludde of his cap and held it up "No," sald Mrs. Hasbronck

After many futile efforts the man lound the right sample and went of upon his errand. Two minutes later Mrs. Hashronek alighted at her resilence, the fewel case in her hand. She carried it directly to a room on the second floor where there was a safe set into the wall. By a window of this room she sat down to enjoy a last glimpso of her favorite trinket before onsigning it to the darkness of the safe. She anlocked the rasket with the key, which she had carried in her glove, and when the lid was up she stared, dumfounded, mon empliness,

The pearls were gone.

For some minutes Mrs. Hashrouck's mind was the abode of other confusion, but presently there began to appear in the unlist of this chaos the semblance of solid facts and the outlines of a plan of netion. She locked the jewel case and put it into the safe. Then she went downstairs to the telephone, but, after contemplating the instrument thoughtfully, she turned away. She had re-membered that the Royersl establishment had a private exchange and that the girl in charge of it could overhear

Does it not seem possible that this was a feature of a clever plot and that while Michael engaged my attention upon one side a condederate came to the opposite wholes of the cartage, reached in, unlocked the box with a duplicate key, locked it ugain and faded away into the turnoil of the city?

It is true that when I had concluded my interview with Michael I happened to look out of the other wholes away into the turnoil of the city?

It is true that when I had concluded my interview with Michael I happened to look out of the other wholes was a war big blue policeman standing on the edge of the sidewalk across the way. I distinctly remember him, and it seems swange that he should have been unable to see this crime, committed under his very nose. Yet policemen so falling more and more into the grip of cell ways. Perhaps this one is even now dividing my nearls with Michael and his two accomplices. I say "two," for I feel sure that my coachman was in the plot and that the third ther wos also one of my servants.

You will remember that I have very often used this green plush bewel enso in carrying bewels back and forth between my house and the establishment of Mr. Henry Roversl, your esteemed uncle. I have left the case empty in my carriags degens of times, and this must have been remarked by my servants. Mr. Roversl admitted that the case was mysterious and deeply distressing. and he begged that it might be laid be fore Mr. Newell, the asiate detective who guarded the vast treasures of the store. Mr. Newell listened without comment to Mrs. Hasbronck's clear and conciso statement of the facts. His questions, though their purport was skillfully velled, were directed, as the ady easily perceived, toward the chic latton of a single element of the casenamely, when and under what circum stances was Mrs. Hashrouck's note de livered to Mr Paul Roversl. CAT SUPERSTITIONS.

Queec Beliefs of Panpla of Accient Egypt Regarding Pass. The lubalitants of ancieut Egypt are believed to have been the first people to attempt to domesticate the wild ape-eles of felime now represented by the ommon house cat. This belief is based upon the fact that sculptured repre-nentations of such animals are found upon their monuments of the year 2000 It. C., more than 1,200 years before they appear on European monn ents. An Egyptian tomb of the year 1300 Il. C. is the first to show a sculptured representation of the cat us a domesticated animal, those of the greater age first mentioned probably representing the creature in its wild atate. In the relief sketch of the date last mentioned, 1300 H. C., it is unmistakahly a pet, heing shown as seated beneath a chair. The Egyptians of that age minimified dead cats just as they did human beings and in many nces entombed hundreds of thousands of them in a single pyramid or pit. Bubastis was the Egyptish cat goddess and was always represented as having a cat's head. Among that queer people puss was regarded as an emblem of the san, its eyes being supposed to vary in color and in the size of their pupils with the progress of that huminary across the henvens. WONDLING OF SLEEP.

The Gween of Stancher lines the Brain and the Heart. "Shatespeare," said a scientist, "call ed sleep the ape of death. That is u striking name for a striking tiling. Sleep is a wonderland. Let us explore

"Self hypmotism is a mysterious force that we can exercise on ourselves 1 sleep alone. We are all self hypnotists. We all, on certain rights, tell ourselves firmly that we must not oversleep, that the next morning at 4, at 5 or 6 pre-cisely—we must wake up. And we do wake up. Our sleepling selves respond to the hypotole suggestion made the night before by our waking selves. That is mysterious and striking, isn't though, is the fact of our keeping track of the time somehow in our slumber. How on earth do we do this? "It is impossible to do without sleep

Men have slept standing, walking, even running. They have slept in battle, un der tire, with gans roaring on all sides. They have slept in unendurable and deadly pain.
"There is no forture equal to that

DOLL AVERTED WAR. Kinduess in Apache Child Prevenier Truuble With the Indians.

A doll once averted a war with renkins. An American general was try-ing ta put a band of Apaches back on their own territory, from which they had persisted in breaking out, last could not catch them without killing them, and that he did not wish to do.

111s men captured a little Indian girl and took her to the fort. She was quiet all day, but her bendy black eyes wutrhed everything. When night came, however, she broke down, just as any white colld would have done. The men tried in vain to comfort her, but finally the agent borrowed a beautiful doll from an officer's wife, which had belonged to her little daughter, and promised the Apache girl that she could have it if her sobs ceased. She then When morning came the doll was elusped in her urms. Eventually the little Apurhe girl, with her doll, was sent back to her people. When the child reached the Indians with the doll in her chubby hands it sande a great sensation among them, and the dny the mother came with the child to the post. She was hospitably received, and through her the tribe was persuaded to move back to its own territory.

The coolest looking place tha Annie had seen during the day was high stoop house on the shady side the street. She herself was upon th anny side because she had been had meli occupied with pecunlary pro lems to consider the advisability of crossing. She stared at the high stoo ouse, and she said, "I wonder could Miss Collect be back from the country yet?" speaking aloud, for she had ded that degree of nervous tensle where the safety valve of unlatended atterance gives its warning of danger Miss Collect was an actress who ha played in the city nearly all of the previous winter, and Annie had been "She would give me a little somethla"

ed simplest to knock.

It was niways hard to hear a knock or a call to "Come in!" at this door, for it queued from a small vestibule and there was a portice at the other end of it. I'pou this occasion it is probable that Annie experienced a genuine hal-inclantion. She was so anxious to hear Miss Colbert's voice that she heard it. Annie entered an empty room.

Upon a talde standing near the window there was a glass plate, and it was heaped high with lewels. The light of the fervid day surged to and beat upon them, and they dashed it back in a thousand sparkling sprays.

"tiee!" said Anole softly. "Wouldn't that jar you? She glanced fearfully toward the wlu-"It's a wonder she wouldn't set 'em out to the lack yard," she continued. "I never saw the like of her. Anyhody ould elimbely bere." On the edge of the plate there was a loose stone alout the size of an average pea. In comparison with the others it looked very small, and Annie was of the opinion that it could be removed without Miss Colhert's missing it. This, then, represented the exof predence and forbearance. Anale rolled the stone around in the palm of her land. It may have been perspiration while chilled the glitter of the stone or the idenomenon may have had an explanation within the domain of morals, but the simple fact is that the gent's light faded and its attruc-tion died. Annie laid it lack upon the plate at last, with a faint seasation of names. The touchstone had revealed her weakness; she lacked the power to

Every Two Minutes

Physicians tell us that all the blood in a healthy human hody passes through the heart onte in every Iwo minutes. If this action becomes irregular the whole body suffers. Poor health follows poor blood; Scott's Emulsion makes the blood pure. One reason why is such a great aid is because it passes so quickly into the blood. It is partly digested before it enters the stomach; a double advantage in this. Less work for the stamach; quicker and more direct benefits. To get the greatest amount of good with the least possible effort is the desire of everyone in poor health. Scott's Emulsion does just that. A change for the better takes place even be-

SCOTT'S EMULSION

The choked with a dry throat, and, being mable to proceed, he made his meaning clear by extending a hand toward the plate. Annie caught him by the wrist. "Don't do that, Tom!" she cried. "You can't get nothin' that way in this vorld-nothin' that's worth havin'. It aln't the way to get me-that's certain, I wouldn't go with you if you had us many of 'car as would fill a keg o' beer unless they was yours."

"How long would It take you an' me to earn enough money to lary one of them stones?" he asked angrily. "An' how much work has she ever done to get 'em all? Men give 'em to her. Dades send 'em round to the stugo door with mash notes. I know all about it."

"She's a good girl," sold Aunie, with at least as much vigor as she would have resented in affack upon her own reputation "Side works hard. Iteholding the display of green notes, Antice passed into a species of france, wideh was so long continued that it uttracted Miss Colbert's attention.

"I've just drawn some money for clotics," said she "Itad to love it. Antice. I've got to buy costumes in a terrible laurry, and I hadn't a cent. So what could the poor manager do?"

Intensity of thought wrinkled and twisted Aunic's frow. She was engaged in the light grade intellectual inter of classification and comparison.

"You don't need any costumes to wear when you wash clothes," she said at last, laroke in. "I know how you an' me can get 'em. There'll never be another when you wash clothes," she said at last, "and you don't have any manager."

Miss Colbert looked at her steadily, with a trondening smile.

"How much do you need?" she said very kindly, that then, handling Annto a tive dollar bill, "Will that help you out?"

The tears came thio Annio's eyes.

MEXICO'S LOST MINES

INCIENT LEDS OF TREASURE THAT CANNOT NOW BE LOCATED.

Romanne Wideh Hovers Around the I'minos Hibben Mine of Talopa. Suprestition and Country of the Native Indiana.

Of the many mines which were worked by the Spaniards and which gave them such faladous returns for their labor scarcely one can be located to lay. Many remantle stories as to their wherenbouts have been followed uponly to be met with defeat.

tine of the richest of those mines was crolably Tarasca, about which Humboldt has written. It was worked long before the Spanlards arrived in Mex-ico, and the gold and allver were made to prognents by the aborigines. A amily in Chaynes has a necklace flying lish purchased from a Pima eldef, who said that the metal was dug from Turasea. Later the mine was nequired by the crown of Spain and was vorked, with the exception of a period oluring the Apache war, till the French Intervention, when the shafts were sable to have been concealed by the admin-Istrator, Don Juan Moreno, who was forced to seek safety in flight. After the restoration of pence the location of Tarasca was looked for in valu, though the inline now known as Pharlo is sup-posed to be the same. When rediscovered years ago Eburbo was found to have been extensively worked and the shafts concealed under earth and brush. Itich idliars of ore were found in the drifts, and the mine corresponds many respects with the descriptions. Tarasca found in the archives of the American consulate at Guaymas. The fame of Tarusca is eclipsed by the romance which hovers around the lost rulne of Tolona, A Mexican of great wealth who was much inferested in the subject mode a trip to Madrid o search for data on the subject. He found absolutely nothing to prove that melt a mine had ever been worked by the crown of Spain, and there is nothlng in Mexican archives to establish the facts. Quite as trustworthy as the written documents are the traditions among the Plan Indians. They mala aln that Tulopa exists and a few claim to know its whereabouts. Small quantilles of very rich ore are occa-sionally sold at the mountain mining mps, but all attempts to follow tho ludinus to the spot where it is found or to bribe them to reveal it have been unavalling. Their wants are few, and they believe that should they reveal secret they would drop dead. About six years ago an old Plum chief fell III In one of the valley juichlos and was enred by a Mexican lady so well known and universally respected that her statement is taken without question. The old Indian returned to his tribe and from time to time sent bis hemefactress rich hits of ore which assayed thousands of dollars to the All her efforts to get him to lead her to the mine were fruitless, for the great spirit would strike him dead for the offense. The following summer tho nora went to the mountains and fly ed among the Indians for three mouths, doctoring the sick and giving presents of ribbons and gay called to the wom-en. She became convinced that the spot whence the rich ore came was Talopa. Finally the old chief admitted that the mine was worked when he was a hoy and gave perialssion to two women of the tribe to lend the senora within a few yards of the mine so that she might discover it for herself and save him from the penalty of sublen death for revealing it. The three wom-en traveled mostly at alght, passing rough deep canyons and over lofty ountalus. The fourth uight some hours after dark the Indher women led her into a deep canyon and pansed before a larga ock. In the dim moonlight an old at rastra was seen and across the canyon a large ore dump. The woman gathered bits of ore from the dump, but was lauried away by the squaws, who said they would be billed if they delayed beyond the time mentioned by their chief. They traveled till the moon went down, rested a few hours and went on before daylight, completely leatiling the Mexican woman as to the route they had taken. They arrived at the pueldo at alghtfall, havug taken four days to reach the mine and but one to return, the obvious condusion being that she had been led it t circle. Despairing of galaing more, he woman returned to her home, but he hopes at some fature thue to con-lane the search. Two other mines which are suppos o have been the property of the crown biring the Spanish occupation and of which there are many remantle tales are the Itelna Mercedes and the Casn Hunca. Roth lave been probably rediscovered and worked under other names. The Itelia Merceles ts suposed to be one of the rich Conchena group and the Unsa Illanea the Casitas mine. Near the latter is un unclent mine, now worked by a Mexican com-pany, which has open cuts on tha surface for more than a mile and several pilles of underground workings. Near this mine, where once a large church stood, which has long since fallen into rnins, two copper hells have been found. They bear the name of Guadalupe de Talequi, thus leading many to the bellef that the Tujos mine is the long lost Talopa.—New York Herald.

Now she chiefed to leave the quiet home and make a name for herself even as the rival had done, and Jackson Peters idended in vain.

He had a strong ally in Mrs. Hurows, who saw that the girl in a home of her own would be far happler than he ber father's house, but this very allince was against blu, and Sally from the barn saw him go into the house, and her slender frame shook with sobs as she realized that Jack was talking over her new blen with her stepmother. She could slip away from her people, and he could tell just what she could do. Her stepmother had driven over to the next town for a visit after the matinee performance Saturday, and here was nothing to hinder her from keeping her appointment with Wells. One of the women furnished her with a costume from her own wardrobe, and Sally, blushing furlously at the bloomers, crept into the ring.

Wells was leaching his own daughter to ride, and to the center pote of tha

From a pulley it the end of this dangled a rope with the horrible suggestion of a gallows and beneath it stood a broad backed white horse, his back sticky with pov lered reshu. Symbols of the "Cloud Fire." Nearly all of the unclent untlou eathed lightning by names signifying "cloud tire," and the major portion of them employed some symbol to repre sent the flash of the "forked fury durting from the thunder clouds. The early Chaldeans symbolized it with a trideat, and the Babylonians, learned he mystic lore, employed a luman hand for the same purpose. The bas-reliefs of the towers of Nimrnd and Multhin which are the work of the later and more refined Assyrian artists, show th trident doubled or transformed into what is known as a "tribi fusciele." This triumph of the classic art secure for the ancient Mesopotamian symbol the advantage over all other represen tations of the thanderbolt. The Breeks represented the "storm tire" with the tenthers of a bird of prey. Later on when they had begin to hicorporat the Asiatic form of the symbol wit their own, they put it in the claws of on eagle and made it the scepter of Zens. Gant received the symbol from Italy, but soon altered It to the famili iar two headed hammer so common o allo-itoman monuments. Brove an Eighteen-In-hand. Many years ago a well known New Yorker, one of the Livingston family who had lived for many years in Flot ence, used to drive six-in-hand there every afternoon. He was a very ed centric individual and gradually in creased the number of his horses until strangers in Plorence would note with anazement every afternoon on the Cas cine a white headed gentleman driving un extraordinacy procession of horse larnessed together two and two, some times as many as eighteen. It was on of the sights of Plarence. Old Mr. Liv-ingston tooled his team safely for a few years, but finally they bolted and ran away. Nothing could stop eighteen horses, and the smashup was some thing terrific. After that the nutbori-ties of Florence forbade Mr. Livingston to drive more than four, and la disgust he shook the dust of Fiorence from bls feet and never returned.

VOLCANIC ACTIVITY.

In a volume on valences Professor, incher undertakes to tell why volmes have eruptions. Melted rock aich as is duag from Vesuvius requires a temperiture of Luxi degrees Fahrenhelt, so that it becomes liquid only far down in the earth, perhaps sixty or a hundred miles. Its low the onier crist of cooled and solidiled rocks there must be a large zone of rock which still remains sold because its temperature is less than that of the melting point corresponding to the pressure wideh it rests, and below that again there must be rock or magnin in a state of fusion. It is to this magnin that Professor Daelter looks for the primary source of all volcanic activity. t the same time the depth at which this primary reservoir of maguin lies and the pressure under which it is confined are so gient that a direct eruption urrounded by rock at a lower temper ature than the melting point. In these circumstance solidification legins. uses are evolved, and the course of of steam evolved from the cooling lava. fever. At one thue-and the idea is still common-this sigam was supposed to have been derived from sea water which had obtained access to the molten lavawhile still underground, but this exdanation is now generally rejected, hehe steam and other emanatious from a volcano are now regarded as directly lerived from an original store in the but is comidned with water and gases, which are given off as it solidifies and by their escape frequently form mininture volcamoes on the surface of lava

If the solicitiention takes place underground the steam and gases are expelled, and, 17 there is no free escape, pressure may increase till it becomes great enough to overcome the resistance of the overlying rock and so lead to an employ and the formation of a volcano, whose character will depend on the nature of the reservoir from which the eruption took place.

Illuaries in the evenlag one sees a stunent take a piece of dry brend out of his pocket and munch it while studying, that being his whide supper. There with his coat collar turned up. He was found frozen dead one morning. He had hardly anything on underneath his cont. But while American students who find themselves hard up will do found, a French student would rather starve than do so, and as one of them expressed it, "lather starve during the years and not do manual labor."

ACTION OF THE RAIN. The Wamlerful Fuctor It Is In the The rain failing on the rocks sluks into every crack and crevice, carrying with it hate these dissures surface mate rial which has been degrated by the weather and thus affording a matrix sufficient to start the growth of vege-lation and afterward to maintain the idents. The ilbers and roots of these plants, bushes and frees thus brought into life, growing and expanding, act as wedges to split up the surface of the rock and to commence the process

As the mountain stream merges lute the rivthe nebldes and coarse sand coulime tir be rolled along the bottom of he channel, while the ragillaceous particles and salts become uningled with the water and dow on with it either in suspension or solution. While this disintegrating process is going on inland the rocks and eliffs on the coast exposed to the seu are suf-fering degradation by a similar proc-

Generally any kind of soft, sibilant roise will tempt a lard tersing. A canary hing in a kitchen will usually start lds song If he hears, say, the frb zling of a frying pan. We utilize spe rial devices to tempt the shy singer who is nechans remiered the more bash ful by finding bimself in novel sur roundings. For this purpose we can plicy whistles and song organs, which urtificially reproduce the "tours" of the roller. This latter method is found to be irresistible when all other plans have falled. The ldrd feels apparently lim he is being challenged and forthwith responds to the challenge by pouring forth the best of his song. - London

To the present day the superstition is rife that blood stains cannot be vashed out. During the French revo intion eighty priests were massacred in the Carmelite chapel at Paris, and the stains, so called, of their blood are pointed out today. Sir Walter Scott, in his "Tales of Grandfather," declares that the blood stains of David Itizzlo, the Italian private secretary of Mary, queen of Scots, who was stabled at Holyrood palace by certain Protestant leaders of her others.

In Lauenshire the natives show a stone called the "bloody stone," which was so marked to show heaven's displeasure at some of Cromwell's soldiers' atrocities at Gallows Croft. In "Macheth," net 5, seene 1, Slinkespeare alludes to the filea, "Yet liere's a spot." The truth is, blood cannot be easily expunged. In the first pince, if that of a murdered person, it is not attempt ed. In the next place, blood contains oxide of iron, which sluks deep into the liber of wood and proves indelible ordinary washing. Thus it is true that stones of a porous nature and wood not of the hardest kind are susceptible to the stalu of blood produced by the oxide of iron which the blood con-tains. But the blood of a pig is as good as that of a murdered man.-l'earson's Weekly. Oriental Flowers of Speech

In the far east language lina always been more florid and ambiguous than in the west. The king of Ava, in Bur-ma, called himself the "regulator of the sensous, the absolute master of the ebb and flow of the sea, brother of the sun and lord of the four and twenty umbrellas." The king of Arracan, lower Burmu, was "jossessor of the white elephant and the two earrings," as well as "lord of the twelve kings who placed their heads under his feet." lu the Mozambique-Zambezl region of Afrien the king of Mononitopa was not only "lord of the sun and moon," but "great unglelan and great thief." Another eastern potentate was the "sovereign of the universe, whose body Is as luminous us the sun, created to be as accomplished us the moon in her plenitude; king us spiritual us the ball ls round." 1)f the ruler of Kamlahar It was said that his fame "exceeds the thoon and stars and the unexpanded jasuine buds" and that his "feet are as fragrant to the noses of other sover eigns us flowers to bees." Tae Way of Long Twilight. On first thought it seems to be a rather purudoxical statement that tho nearer we approach to the equator the shorter is that intermediate stage or transition from day to night and from alght to day which we call "Iwilight." This being the case, however, the period of durather of "the dlin, uncertain light" in all traccal countries ic very short when compared with that of countries of Ligh northern or southern buttunie. The explanation is this: On the equator the sun's path is at exact right angles with the horizon. The last cam of light fades from view when the sun is at 18 degrees below the horizon. This is degree mark is quickly reached at the equator for reasons given in the first sentence of this explanalow: The further from the equator we get the less become the ungles which the sun's course makes with the horizon and the longer the time required for him to reach the 18 degree mark; henco the longer the period of twilight. She was lying back in her chair. Bart could have cried out, she looked so dreary, so lonely, so wastell. She hed a ductor, she said, but the sickness had been comited on for a long time, and it ran in ter family, her mother having died of it. But she grew cheerful now that thart had come, and he sot there, her cheerfulness commencating liself to him. When it was itme foe idea to go she said a stenned thing. "Simson."
"Its same," she rerrected, "was Samaos."
"I thort it wus Simson," and Bart.
"Asyway, Simson aconds more like as if you knowed him. I'll cuit bim that." She exphiloed the story us well as she could, but she seemed uneasy. "I aught not to have read that," she said. "It was

Maybe he cared for another woman, and beling took him from her. Delitah inhal nive been more than a paid apy; she must have been revengeful because he had oved before he met her. That day when

"Tharty." said Miss Calderson, "suppose I tell you a story. I have never told it to a living soul yet-pechapa because there was no one to tell it to; I am all alone in the world. There was a girl," she said softly, "who cared mightly for a man. He was a great strong man, but ha had his weak spot. His weak spot was tis love of beauty-beauty in a woman. This girl was not beautiful. Well, the girl was not beautiful. Well, the girl became engaged to marry the man. Ah, he was so good to her; he was so atrone! And she was so frail and weak-her frailty and weakness may have atteacted hiot to her, those and har great love for him. Bhe was fond of flowers, white flowers, such as she had seen in her mother's dead hand when she was a child. Every Baturday night he brought her a white roan to wear on Sunday. Once he met her friend, bellah. After that he was loat to the frail girl. This frail girl was proud; she save him up and seemed happy. She even weat to the wedding. Then she left that part of the country and went to town. She grew frailer, she thought she had given him up, but she had not Aad how did she know that she had not given lidir up? Wiry, every Saturday olght when her work was psild for site bought a white fose, just as he had done, and she wore it Sundays. I think that ross is killing her, but she will wear it to the ead."

THE SUNKEN SHIP.

Bright was the sea and still, Fair shone the Orient coast,
Fair shone the Orient coast,
Serene and calin bent the summer sky
O'et England's squadron host.
Brilliant the line and long,
Flashing the flags and free;
Not a thought of care, not a throb of dicad
Upon that smiling sea.

Was it band or fielm that failed?
When the wounds of a friend ploughed deep,
And the salt waves throttled those stalwart fais.
As filey took the latal leap?
While sullenly into the sea
Sank that mighty ship of steel
And a lightning flash bent the whole world's gla-Upon that trembling keel.

UNION CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WEYMOUTH AND BRAINTREE.

At the annual meeting of the Union church, held Jan. 17, 1996, the pastor, Hey 11. Cochrnne, presiding, the following officers were chosen for the easiling year: Deacons, Harry F. South, Archibald Ronkton, Charles T. Crane. Treasurer, Edgar II. Holles

Clerk, Miss Jessie Macgregor Executive committee, Miss Sarah M. Lond, Mrs. 13 B. Crnac, Miss Abble L. Lond Sunday School superlatendent, Edgar II. Bolles! SuperIntendent of primary department, Mrs. L. E. Crane.

Sanday School secretary, Roger Lond. Sunday School treasurer, C. Edw Mayo. The reports of the various societies connected with the church were not only inesting but very encouraging. In the past two years tweaty-four new members ave been added to the roll. The treasurer's report for the past year shows several hundred dollars given to enevolences-the Little Wanderer's Home, the Brockton Shue Factory Employee-Relief fund, the Foreign and Home Missionary societies and various Caugregationa

The report of the Sunday School secretary, Harold J. Taylor, showed good at endance and enrollment, both in the primary department and in the main school; also, the treasurer, Charles E. Mayo, reported a halauce on hand greater than for everal years preceding An interesting account was given by the superintendent, Edgar II. Bolles of the ome Repartment of the Sunday School, la which much interest is manifested, and t is hoped that the membership may be increased during the coming year.

The fact that the primary department has sent a check for lifteen deliars to the Kindergarten for the Blind shows the faithfulness with which the penny contribulons have been remembered for the past year. The officers of this department are Mrs. Charles T. Crane, superintendent; Mrs. E. II. Holles and Miss Lucy Voorhees, eachers; and Miss Florence Plerce, Ilbrarian. The Ladles' Benevolent society, under the leadership of its president, Mrs. J. F ineppard, have accomplished much in the line of actual beaccoleace in the past year, both at home and in the west. They have packed their usual "missionary burrel," estinanted as worth fifty dollars, and have contributed largely to local oenevolences and charitable work near home. Consisting of representative women of the church this society has, for many years, been conshiered one of the important organizations for carrying on the church work, particularly of a charitable nature for the poor and

The auxiliary of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions reports a membership of 21. The meetings have been well attended and the contributions for the past year amounted to over (wenty-five dollars - Mrs. Charles T. Craac, president) Mrs. A. D. Tirrell, secretary Of particular laterest is the report of the active work of the Christian Eadeavor ociety. During the past year ten new metabers have been added. About thirty-five lollars has been sent to various charitable objects, city missions and educations work in New Meylco and Minnesota During the year the society has formed a mission study class. The meetings are held bi-mouthly and are under the leadership of N Atherton Richards. The text book, "Saurise in the Suurise Kingdom," (a study of Japan) is very interesting and the meetings are well intended and justice tive; there are twenty-one members in the class One of the new societies formed during the past year is the Flower circle o wideh Mrs. E. H. Bodies is leader. The report was read by Miss Helen Richards und showed the carnest work of this circle in farnishing flowers for the church service each Sunday and in sending them to the sick and aged. This circle held a salo at which they made about thirty dollars, With some of this money they have farnished flowers for the chorch and expended some for the Christmas tree and Parish party They report a balance of $19.53.

Another Important society of the church is the Social club, the report of which was read by Mr N Goodspeed. The circle has held a lawn party, a fair and a num ber of suppers. Some of the proceeds have been expended on repairs to the church and a tablet for the outside of the building. They have contributed about one hu dred and sixty dollars towards church expenses the past year. The treasurer reports a balance of $12.32

The Unity Circle of King's Daughters organized March 7, 1905, with twenty-fly numbers, the object of the circle being "To cultivate a spirit of loyalty to each other of clearly, and good will to all, and extend a helping, hand as far as we may be given be opportunity. Sickness, sorrow and joy lave comediate our own circle in these few months, and already there has been opportunity to prove our loyalty to each other. We have had the privilege of showing a spirit of good will to many, while we flud there is always work to be done for the sick and for the needy, all causing os to realize more and more the need of such an organization as oars.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

Mr. Edltor Would It not be a good thing for the hildren in our High school to put aside their tops, basket full, and so forth, and take up the study of the blography of Benjamin Franklin, so full of good things, which, if remembered, would save the child from many a idender in after life? Again meeting the school boy with his scarlet fever and all dirty diseases.

Ought this not to be looked after? We have a physician on our school board who must know the dauger from these old ooks, a menace to the homes of our people. How far better was the old wny, when the father of the family bought the school books! The toy began his primer, studied it through, his name was in it, then it was put away in the old bookense, o be taken up years afterward, as a pleasant remlader of the days gone by. A while ago, my school days came to my mlud and I bethought me of the fanions American First Class Book, complied by the Rev. John Pierpont, who was pastor of the old Hollis Street church ln 1819. Bev. John Pierpout, one of our nutive poets, was ilrst a lawyer and then i merchant and when 70 years old went to the Civil war as chaplain - He wrs the the great function. I told my son of the Quincy Public Market Co. grandfather of John Plerpont Morgan, reader above mentioned and that he must and it for me: he at last found a copy in New York, a fine, clean book with the cretty school girl's name, just as she wrote it seventy years ago, on the fly leaf. This First Class Book is compiled from the best authors, from Wordsworth's ·Goody Blake and Harry Gill" to Hryant's "Thunntopsis," Shakespeare to Lu Sage a book seemingly a library of itself. It is n worthy thing to abate a aulsance why not have the purents hoy the schoolhooks as was done years ago, and get rld of the flithy books which I see curried under the arms of the school boy? EDMEND S. HUNT

From Headache and Neuralgia

In a Few Minutes After Taking

Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. Chronic Case Cured.

"I cannot speak to highly of your remedies and I will always tell toy friends how much they have done for my husband and myself for sudden attacks of heataches, neuralgin and theumatic panis. There is nothing equal to br. Miles' Anti-l'ain Fills. They are simply splendid and give reflect in fifteen or fwenty finantes. I used to be subject to attacks of heatache, which liad become chronic, and I took a couse of Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills or connection with the Anti-Pain Pills. The result is I now have very fittle timable in that way. We husband has also taken these remedies and graises them very highly. We always have some olioth kinds of pills in the house, and do not leed that we could get along without them.—Mss. KATE K. JOHNSON, McClellandsville, Delaware.

There are many reasons why you should take 14. Miles' Muli-Pan Pills, but the best reason's that they will give you almost instant reliel from heal ache or other pain. In cases of chronic head ache, when the sufferer knows on attack is coming on, a Pan Pill will assually prevent it entirely. In cases of extreme nervous exhaustion, when the brain is too tited and the body too netwous to rest, an Anti-Pain Pill will sooth the nerves so that sleep may come. They never lail, be contain no opiates and are non-laxative.

Tempson is reported to have remarked once to Sir Hubert Parry; "Browning is devoted to music and knows a great deal about it, but there is no music in his verse. I feel physically refreshed and enginened by it, as Millou says he On the other hand, Southey was in-

"I have an indifferent good ur for a Jig." he continued, "but your sides and summer give me the spleen, so I e'en remained behind to prane my

Scott, apparently, would have sympathized with Theophile Gautler, who ace called music the most expensive noise on earth. Of Gautier It is also plated that on one oceasion when taken to task by a scambalized host for taiking while some one was sloging be replied, "Je ne supprime pas la musique, Je ne fuls que l'attenner?" A still more fanans Freuchman, Victor Hugo, objected strongly to his dramas being used as fibrettos. The said the music spoiled his verses. Milton took a very different view. He sang of soft Lydian airs -Mairfed to bonorfal verse, Such as the ordring soul may plerce in notes with many o whalling hout of linked sweetness long drawn out. The composer of the deep organ harmonies of "Paradise Lost" was prob ubly one of the greatest music lovers in the ranks of the poets. He was a musician binaself of no mean ability, and his love for the art stands revealed I many passages in his works. Insensibility to music has been by no means confined to poets. A futter day ducal governor of Madras is said to have declared that there were only two tunes-one was "God Save the Oneen" and the other "was not?" He would have appreciated the remark of the Prenchman that music is "the noise for which one is oldiged to pay, t dictum with which fir. Johnson would have cordially sympathized. The doctor's remark at a violin performance is familiar. When a friend, noticing the great man's hattention to the dexterity displayed, remarked mon the difficulty of the performance to which they were listening, the docfor cried: "Difficult, do you call It, sir? I wish it were hapossible?" And when Boswell in a gusting fit strongly and painfully, producing in his mind alternate sensations of pathetic dejection so that he was ready to shed tears and of daring resolution thickest part of the battle, the doctor simply and effectively gave him a cold donelo-"Sir, I should never hear it if it made me such a fool?"

Yet Johnson once confessed to having been impressed by solemn music at a funeral, and on another occasion, when asked by a lady whether he was fond of music, he replied gallantly that of all noises he conshiered it the least disagreeable. Johnson even went so far as to ask his friend, Dr. Barney, the historian of music, to teach him the musical scale. "Dr. Burney," he said. "teach me at least the ulphabet of your language," tmagination rather boggles at the idea of the lexicographer in the character of a music papil.

Lamb, again, although he numbered accomplished musicians among his friends, cared little for their melodies. He confessed to having practiced "God Save the King" all his life-"whistling and humaing it over to myself in solitary corners and am not yet arrived, they tell me, within many quavers of it." On one occasion at the Novelles he managed to "weather the Mo-zartian storm" with the aid of soothing porter, but his power of musical reepaivity was very soon exhausted, as e has explained in his own inimitable way in the "Chapter on Bars." Swift, indeed, whose feelings were never half hearted about anything, hated the art. He cynically made mathematics and noise the two chief pursuits of his absurd Laputans. He was at Windsor one evening in 1711 and after much sohellation was at last perstuded to go into the music room. But he did not stuy very long.
